

CURRICULUM VITA

ARTHUR M. NEZU, PhD, DHL, ABPP

BRIEF BIO (JANUARY 2017)

Dr. Arthur M. Nezu is Distinguished University Professor of Psychology, Professor of Medicine, and Professor of Community Health & Prevention at Drexel University. In addition, he serves as the Director of the Clinical Health Psychology major area of study for the clinical psychology doctoral program. Dr. Nezu is currently an Associate Editor for the American Psychologist and recently completed his tenure as Editor of the Journal of Consulting and Clinical Psychology. Previous editorial appointments include Editor of the Behavior Therapist and Associate Editor for Archives of Scientific Psychology. In addition, he is a member of numerous journal editorial boards, including serving as an International Editorial Advisor for the Australian Psychologist and an Editorial Advisor for Translational Behavioral Medicine: Practice, Policy, and Research. Dr. Nezu is an elected Fellow of numerous professional associations and is board certified in three professional psychology specialties (behavioral and cognitive psychology, clinical psychology, clinical health psychology). He has received numerous awards from various professional organizations, including the 2015 Florence Halpern Award for Distinguished Contributions to the Profession of Clinical Psychology by the Society of Clinical Psychology (Division 12 of APA) and the 2017 Distinguished Contributions to the Profession of Psychology award from the American Board of Professional Psychology. Based on his efforts to promote diversity and multiculturalism in professional psychology, in 2013, the American Board of Professional Psychology created an annual dissertation award in his name (Arthur M Nezu, PhD, ABPP Outstanding Dissertation Diversity Award). Dr. Nezu also received an Honorary Doctoral Degree (Doctor of Humane Letters) in 2014 from the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine based on his lifetime achievements and contributions. He is best known for his work as the co-developer of Problem-Solving Therapy (PST), a clinical intervention designated by numerous professional organizations as an evidenced-based psychotherapy. Along with Dr. Christine Maguth Nezu, he co-developed a PST-based therapy program for the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Department of Defense currently being implemented across the U.S. He is a member of numerous APA committees including the task force to revise the Publication Manual (7th edition), the working group to revise the Journal Article Reporting Standards, and the expert panel to develop clinical practice guidelines for depression. He currently serves as a subject matter expert consultant to the VA, DoD, and the Air Force, and was previously president of the Association of Behavioral and Cognitive Therapies, the American Board of Behavioral and Cognitive Psychology, and the World Congress of Behavioural and Cognitive Therapies. He has published over 225 journal articles and book chapters, as well as 23 books. Many of his scholarly writings have been translated into differing foreign languages. Dr. Nezu's research and program development has been funded by the National Cancer Institute, the National Institute of Mental Health, the Department of Veterans Affairs, and the Air Force. He has held honorary and visiting faculty appointments in Japan and the United Kingdom, served as an educational consultant to the University of Hong Kong, and has presented numerous invited addresses around the world.

ACADEMIC/PROFESSIONAL APPOINTMENTS

Note: Having joined the faculty of Hahnemann University (HU) in 1989, my official affiliation changed to Drexel University (DU) when the two university systems merged in July 2002. Moreover, due to other mergers, HU has had several name changes since my initial appointment—to the Medical College of Pennsylvania & Hahnemann University in 1994, and to MCP/Hahnemann University in 1997. Thus, the affiliations noted below starting from 1989 may be somewhat confusing. However, upon the merger between HU and DU, Drexel considers me to be an employee since 1989.
